"A Yuppie ringer?"

This year saw the completion of the major project at St. Martin-in-the-Fields, Trafalgar Square. The old ring was removed, restored and re-fitted, and the bells are now awaiting their new home in Perth, Western Australia. A new frame and bells have been installed in the London tower and all concerned are justifiably proud of the result of all their labours. The front cover of this issue is of course St. Martin-in-the-Fields, and it was provided, together with the photographs on this page, by David Garton.
